HISTORY OF ST. ALBERT

While travelling together to Fort Edmonton in January 1861, Father Lacombe convinced Bishop Taché that a mission be established on the Sturgeon River to serve the Indians and Métis of the district. Bishop Taché declared that "the site of the new mission ... shall be called by the name of your Holy Patron, St. Albert." Father Lacombe encouraged Métis families from Lac St. Anne to relocate to the mission site. A year later, a hamlet of 20 small cabins had grown up around the mission.

The first building to be erected at St. Albert was a modest log chapel in 1861. Two years later Father Lacombe's residence became the site of the settlement's first school with three Grey Nuns as its teachers. In 1864, the "Youville Asylum" was opened and served as both convent and school. The Asylum later functioned as an orphanage and as the first hospital in central Alberta.

By 1870, St. Albert had become the largest settlement west of St. Boniface, Manitoba. It boasted a population of 1,000 including both Métis and white settlers. However, disaster struck when a smallpox epidemic claimed 300 lives.

Between 1870 and 1900, the area surrounding St. Albert attracted an increasing number of settlers, primarily French-Canadians. As a result, the community began to prosper as an active service centre. In 1904, the settlement was officially incorporated as a Town.

By mid-century St. Albert had begun to lose much of its rural appearance. The main street, Perron Street, boasted butcher shops, restaurants, hardware and general stores. In 1957 when the population reached 1900, the province assigned St. Albert "New Town" status. St. Albert became the eleventh city in Alberta on January 1, 1977.

St. Albert continues to grow and prosper offering its residents a high quality of life with abundant parks and award-winning cultural and recreational programs.
